Becky's Babblings

Once again using memories of my preferred location for my header.

The greens of Monsoons are here too, but just haven't been around any scenic views.

Hanging in and Halfway Through

I'll admit life seemed to be moving quite slow during my early time here in Thailand. Just all the newness, I guess, and trying to figure out what I was doing. But now I am suddenly realizing that time is passing quickly again, and I am halfway through the time I plan to be here before heading back to where I was before. And now, the days are filling and passing very quickly. I still haven't adjusted very well to the heat and humidity, so continue to center my time mostly in the air conditioning.

I've found a 'Body' to attend regularly, where I have been thankful for the worship and the word. Like all the groups here, there has been a steady stream of visitors, so I've been able to meet and visit with quite a variety of people. I've also joined in with a team that visits foreign visitors in the prison here. I've never done anything like this before, but can variety of background and stories. My purpose for joining in every other week has been to work with the 2 national men that speak the language I have learned. It is a long day, with travel, waiting, and then the 2-3 hour marathon of talking on phones across windows. Wow- it really is like TV! One of them is a strong part of the Family, and being used in an amazing way to share with so many. He thankfully is quite proficient in several languages. The other man (L), however, has just joined the Family after being in prison, and doesn't know much English or Thai. He has had very little teaching, though he has truly believed. I've now been able to mail in some lessons for him to work on and so we can talk about when I visit. He is excited about this, and it will be good to start being sure he at least understands the foundations and to hopefully see L grow strong in the faith.

Much more time continues to be spent on-line from my nice comfortable apartment.

Monthly meetings with 3 different groups for prayer and encouragement, and still working with BiG Mission on administrative work, advising, mentoring, Board meetings, etc.

Please continue to intercede for BiG as they get out into new community areas and try to get to know the scattered Bodies, as well as look for opportunities for trainings. This next week there will be a workshop to design a training for another interested group. This is still down in the southern plains area close to the border.

New Endeavor and Learning Curves

After a lot of thought and looking for His direction, I have decided to dive into a new kind of work. I am starting a Podcast. Yeah, who would have thought, but with seeing the huge use of Social Media on mobile phones throughout the Mountain Country, it is actually a way to access far and wide. I will actually be doing what they call a Faceless Podcast (anonymously)

Having never done anything like this, I have spent a lot of time researching and learning how to go about it: using AI, recording & editing, developing a video from this, etc. Yes, a lot to absorb as a newbie, and a lot of time in designing, planning, and preparing. Thankfully so far I am using one free program, and 2 others that I already have on my computer and have already worked with a bit. It is a multi-stage process this way, but fancier programs would really add up. I've finished my first session, but will wait until I have several done before I actually post. My desire is that this can get spread around, especially in the more rural areas, and that Our Boss will really use this to encourage and challenge many to look deeper into the Book and grow in their walk and witness. Lots of need to be remembering me for help and direction in the making and also for the reception on the other side.
